Flowing Million Feet

Per Day is Capacity of New Gas Well Struck by Ohio Valley Co. at Brooksville

Good news came this morning at 8:40 from President Brown, who is drilling the test well at Brooksville for the Ohio Valley Oil and Gas Co. of this city.

Brown telephoned THE PUBLIC LEDGER that at 4 p.m. yesterday at a depth of 1,000 feet, he struck the third pocket of natural gas which is now flowing with a pressure of 25 pounds to the square inch and at the rate of 1,000,000 feet per day.

If this is the case it will prove a rich strike to the waiting stockholders, and will not only enrich them, but boom this entire section of the State.

No such flow of gas has ever been struck in this part of Kentucky.

FOR PRESIDENT,

The New York Times in a recent issue publishes the following comment:

EDITORIAL SINS CONFESSED.

Careless Writing and Bad Proof Reading. Many a journalistic heart will thrill sympathetically with some explanations and excuses given by The Lexington (Ky.) Herald for the occasional appearance in its columns of typographical errors. One of its readers—evidently a most fault-finding person—complained because in a single paragraph it turned Mrs. John Frazer's well-known name to "Fizer," and the charming Miss Bettie Barrow's to "Brower," substituted "Bryon Manor" for Bryn Mawr" and put a needless and undignifying "t" on the end of the word "rabb." This, the critical reader sarcastically remarked, indicated that The Herald would be the better for the services of a proofreader.

The Herald's editor humbly admits that the showing was pretty bad; but with a truly noble frankness he says that not all errors of the kind cited are due to carelessness or incompetency in proofreading. Editors and reporters, he says, sometimes write proper names inaccurately or illegibly, and he adds:

The Herald has a corps of writers unequaled anywhere else in America, so far as we know, in the peculiar individuality of their handwriting. Written by some of the members of the staff, "Frazer" might appear as "Fitzpatrick" or "Barrow" as "Wheelbarrow" or "Bryn Mawr" as "Bryan's Mother." Sometimes, when one of these writers is asked to tell a linotype what a certain word is, and the writer is unable himself to decipher his own writing an hour after it is written, the trouble of the proofreader may be understood.

Such confession as that is good for the editorial soul—if it be followed by earnest, prayerful efforts to reform, and by the abandonment of those tempters to graphic sins, the pen and the pencil, and the use of the virtuous and elevating typewriter instead. Some day, and not very far in the future, newspapers are going to insist that all "copy" be typewritten and to refuse even examination to any other. Doing that wouldn't abolish all typographical errors, but it would very appreciably raise the moral tone of the whole country if pens were used only for signing checks and pencils for the making of hasty memoranda. Especially stub pens and soft pencils.

Exactly right is The Times. Newspapers should insist that all copy be typewritten. The Herald has tried to follow this rule for ten years, but to a certain extent a new generation has to be bred and brought up before it can be made an inviolate rule. As an illustration, what chance in the world is there of teaching Enoch Grehan to write on the typewriter, or to write his paragraphs with anything except a soft stub pencil, and that he or any one else can read what he writes is always a marvel to us. In fact we do not believe even he can. We think the printers just guess at it, and then when the proof comes back he revises the proof not in accord with what he first wrote, but in accord with what his agile and facile mind thinks of at the time he reads the proof.

But joking aside, how some mistakes occur it is impossible to explain. It is only possible to pray that they will be overlooked by readers as well as by proofreaders.—Lexington Herald.

The magic of baseball has wrought a wonderful change in the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth. For the first time in the prisoner's history, not one convict is undergoing punishment for breaking prison rules. Such infractions are punished by putting the convict in striped clothing, and now there is not one convict so clothed.

All this, so prison officials say, is due to the organization of the three baseball teams among the convicts. Infractions of the rules, in addition to the striped clothing, results in the convict's baseball pass being taken away, so he is not permitted to witness the prison game. It used to be usual to find anywhere from 20 to 50 men wearing stripes, but immediately after the notification that infraction of the rules meant loss of the baseball pass the chronic trouble makers began to be so good that the officials were startled.

As a result the prison officials now are planning winter amusements, such as vaudeville entertainments and moving picture shows, to keep the men on their good behavior.

Bad Crop Outlook

Farmers of Kentucky are facing a rather gloomy prospect for crops this summer, according to the monthly crop report for May which was issued Saturday by the Department of Agriculture.

It is expected she will build up an institution which will be an important branch of the government service in the investigation of conditions of child life and in correlating and accelerating the activities of individual states in bettering such conditions.

The appointment of Miss Lathrop was urged upon President Taft by social reform organizations not only in Chicago but in other parts of the country. He was informed that she has made a specialty of the study of child life and its amelioration in connection with settlement work and that she has been prominent in the movement which resulted in the enactment of child labor legislation in Illinois.

The same organizations which endorsed Miss Lathrop brought about the creation of the children's bureau by congress.

CAPTAIN ROSTRON'S REPORT

Capt. A. H. Rostron was in command of the Cunard line steamship Carpathia, which rescued the survivors of the Titanic disaster. His ship was east bound on its regular trip when the distress signal was picked up by the vessel's wireless operator. In his official report to the general manager of the company, the captain said, in part:

"I beg leave to report that at 12:35 a. m. Monday, 15th inst., I was informed of urgent message from Titanic with its position. I immediately ordered ship turned around and put it in course for that position, we being then fifty-eight miles away. Had heads of all departments called and issued what I considered the necessary orders to be in preparation for any emergency."

"At 2:40 a. m. saw flare half a point on port bow. Taking this for granted to be a ship, shortly after we sighted our first iceberg. I had taken every care and precaution. We soon found ourselves in a field of bergs, large and small, and had to alter our course several times to clear bergs. "We stopped at 4:00 a. m., thus doing distance in three hours and a half, picking up the first boat at 4:10 a. m., boat in charge of officer, and he reported that Titanic had founders. At 8:30 a. m., last boat picked up. All survivors aboard and all boats accounted for."

"At 8:00 a. m. the Leyland steamship California came up. I gave him the principal news and asked him to search and I would proceed to New York; at 8:50 proceeded full speed while researching over vicinity of disaster."

Miss Julia C. Lathrop of Chicago, now for many years a colleague of Jane Addams in the work of Hull house, has been appointed chief of the recently created children's bureau of the national government. The nomination was sent to the senate the other day by President Taft.

Miss Lathrop is the first woman ever selected to direct a bureau of the federal government. Moreover, to her will be committed the foundation and development of the activities which the national government is about to undertake to further the welfare of children.

It is expected she will build up an institution which will be an important branch of the government service in the investigation of conditions of child life and in correlating and accelerating the activities of individual states in bettering such conditions.

The appointment of Miss Lathrop was urged upon President Taft by social reform organizations not only in Chicago but in other parts of the country. BARON HENGELMULLER ANGRY

Baron Ladislas Hengelmuller von Hengervar, Austrian-Hungarian Ambassador to this country, journeyed to the Hamburg-American line docks in Hoboken the other afternoon to meet the baroness and their daughter, who were passengers on the steamship Amerika.

Outside the docks were scores of taxicabs on which were taimeters which registered distances and the amount of change due from passengers. But the Baron passed these by and his eye lighted on a limousine car owned by Hexamer's garage and driven by Fred Volkman, one of his chauffeurs. There was no taximeter on this car, but in his pocket Volkman carries a schedule of prices.

"We'll take this," said the baron to the baroness, and he assisted his wife and daughter and the maid into the vehicle, and to Volkman remarked:

"The Hotel St. Regis, New York."

Volkman drove to the ferry and payed the passage money from his own pocket, crossed over to Manhattan. Then with all speed he drove to the St. Regis.

The baroness, the daughter and the maid alighted. Then came the baron. He stepped to the chauffeur and asked brusquely:

"How much?"

"Six dollars and fifty cents. The fifty cents is for ferriage," answered Volkman.

The baron's face grew red, his eyes were fixed hard on the chauffeur and he gasped:

"Six dollars and a half? I'll not pay it."

Ambassadors being bigger than New York police, Volkman turned the account over to the company for collection.

PRINCESS PAT IS AN ARTIST

New Yorkers are enjoying the opportunity of viewing some of the artistic handwork of Princess Patricia of Connaught, who recently won so much popularity there. Six of her paintings were selected from those shown at the Montreal art exhibition, and are now on exhibition in New York. As a water color painter she has few rivals in Europe, certainly none in its royal houses. A picture, reputed to be one of the cleverest works of the princess shows King Edward, smiling in perfect content, leaving the dinner table. "I Was Hungry" is the title of this whimsical conceit.

King Edward dearly loved his niece, Patricia, and did his best to spoil her. He used to urge her to give imitations of their kin and roared with laughter at her skill at mimicry. As she grew older it is said she exacted a promise from him that he would never use his royal prerogative to force her into a marriage she did not desire. Certain it is, if she has not been able to marry the man of her choice, she has at least remained free.

York City, says in a letter: "My health began to run down two years ago, and from that time to last April I was in a badly weakened condition with little energy and poor appetite.
Having heard so much about Vinol, I began taking it, and already I have improved so much that all my friends notice a great difference.
I have entirely recovered my former strength
—thanks to Vinol."

This delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil is of the greatest value in creating strength, restoring appetite and building up the body. Pale, sickly women, overworked men, feeble old folks and delicate children all need it, and we positively guarantee it comes to give satisfaction. John C. Pecor, Drugist, Mayville, Ky.

YOU CAN

go much farther and do a great deal worse in clothes buying than to buy your Spring clothes right here in Maysville from reputable Maysville merchant. Responsibility is the cornerstone of modern merchandising. The idea that you can save money or get better clothes value by patronizing any Tom, Dick or Harry who introduces himself as a "special representative" and shows his "kit" of samples, is, to put it mildly, fallacious. Here are clothes made by the foremost exponent of really high grade manufacturing tailors. They are right clothes for you.

A Maysville citizen's statement forms convincing proof.

It's local testimony—it can be investigated.

Nathan Hafer, 316 W. Front street, Maysville, Ky., says: "I know what Doan's Kidney Pills will do, and do not hesitate to recommend them. My kidneys were irregular in action and painful. I had backache and found difficulty in stooping or bending. When I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills I did so. They stopped the pain and regulated the kidney action."

TAFT REMITS FINES

Eight Grant County Intimidators Escape $3,500 Penalties

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14th.—The Taft administration took a long step toward adjusting the inequalities in the Kentucky Tobacco situation today by remitting the fines of $3,500 imposed by the Eastern Kentucky Federal Court on eight Grant county farmers under the criminal section of the Sherman anti-trust law. The step was taken by President Taft at the solicitation of Senator Bradley and Representatives Rouse and Cantrill.

They were charged on behalf of Grant county union of the Society of Equity with having forced a grower to withdraw hogsheads of tobacco from the depot at Dry Ridge, although the tobacco had been consigned to Cincinnati and was thus in the interstate trade.
